Protest Against the Assassination of Rathenau

OVER 200,000 persons were in the throng, a part of which is here pictured, that gathered in the Lustgarten in Berlin the day after the assassination of Rathenau to vent their indignation against the crime. Dr. Rathenau was one of the ablest public men in Germany and had incurred the bitter hatred of the monarchist element because of his moderate attitude in regard to reparations. On June 24 he was shot and killed by two or more assassins while on his way from his residence in Grunewald to the Foreign Office in Berlin. The Minister was subjected to a hail of bullets, one of them striking him in the throat and passing upward to the brain, while others were buried in various parts of the body. Hand grenades were also thrown, almost wrecking the car in which Dr. Rathenau was riding and inflicting further injuries on him. He was struck by at least eight bullets, any one of which would have been fatal, according to the autopsy. Several arrests have been made of those who are believed to have been concerned in the crime.

Special interest attaches to the dangerous looking curved bats that are used in throwing and catching the ball. The game is said to be replete with thrills and requires great proficiency by the players.

West Point From the Sky

SUPERB view from an airplane of West Point, N. Y., the site of the United States Military Academy. Every detail of the buildings and grounds stands out with the clearness of a cameo. In the foreground are the Academy buildings, while beyond are the drill and parade grounds abutting on the lordly Hudson. The Academy is beautifully situated at the narrow pass where the river breaks through the Highlands, whose bold and rugged peaks rise on every side. The buildings occupy a plateau 180 feet above the water. The place was selected for fortification during the Revolution on account of its great natural strength. The Academy was formally opened in 1802. It was at West Point that Benedict Arnold conceived the design of surrendering to the British, his treason being revealed by the capture of the British emissary Major Andre at Tarrytown. Attempt to Reach the Summit of Mount Everest Route followed by the British expedition in their attempt to scale the summit of Mount Everest in the Himalayas, the highest mountain peak in the world. The different stages of the journey are indicated to a height of 27,200 feet, which was reached on June 13. The party later came within a few hundred feet of the summit and then, it was reported, were forced to abandon the attempt because of insuperable difficulties.

AFTER the North Pole and South Pole had been discovered, the first by Peary, the second by Amundsen, about the only thing left in the world that challenged the ingenuity and daring of explorers was the summit of Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, which soars in the heavens at a height of 29,200 feet. Attempts had been made previously to tread this mountain peak, but never on so large a scale as that contemplated by the British expedition of the Royal Geographic Society, which started out on its quest in 1921. The expedition was equipped with every known facility and appliance for mountain climbing, and it was predicted that this time the conquest of the mountain was assured. The year 1921 was largely devoted to preliminary work, although a height of over 20,000 feet was attained. In the picture of the route followed by the party, shown on this page, it will be noted that on June 13 of this year two of the daring climbers reached a height of 27,200 feet. Later news dispatches stated, however, that the attempt had been abandoned owing to difficulties that appeared insurmountable.

Oxygen helmet used by the members of the British exploring expedition in order to be able to breathe during their climb the highly rarified atmosphere, where without the helmet life would be impossible.

The immense scale on which the attempt to climb Mount Everest was carried out is illustrated by the baggage carried along by the expedition, a part of which is here shown. To convey it to the lowest slope of Mount Everest required the services of fifty coolies and 350 yaks, the hardy beasts of burden of that region.

German Hussars Marching Into Upper Silesia

GERMANS OCCUPYING PART OF UPPER SILESIA

Large body of German Hussars wearing field gray and the old Prussian helmets passing in front of the City Hall of Loebisch, a part of the section of new Silesia allotted to them by the decision of the League of Nations. It will be noted that the old black-and-white Prussian pennons decorate the front of the buildings and the former imperial flag flies from the roof, while the non-commissioned officers in the front of the procession carry the pennons bearing the Prussian eagle. The incident marks the peaceful solution of one of the most perplexing European problems following the peace treaty. The mines of Upper Silesia are immensely valuable and were coveted by both Poland and Germany. Many clashes had occurred between the two nations, and there was a possibility that the question might become the nucleus of a new war. The plebiscite carried out in conformity with the terms of the peace treaty showed a majority of about two to one in favor of Germany. An attempt was made by the Poles to forestall the decision by the entry of armed forces that took forcible possession of the section which Poland decided should be hers. These, however, were eventually forced to retreat and the matter was submitted to the arbitrament of the League of Nations. They divided Upper Silesia between Poland and Germany in accordance with their views of the equities of the case.

LEEDS HONORS MARSHAL FOCH

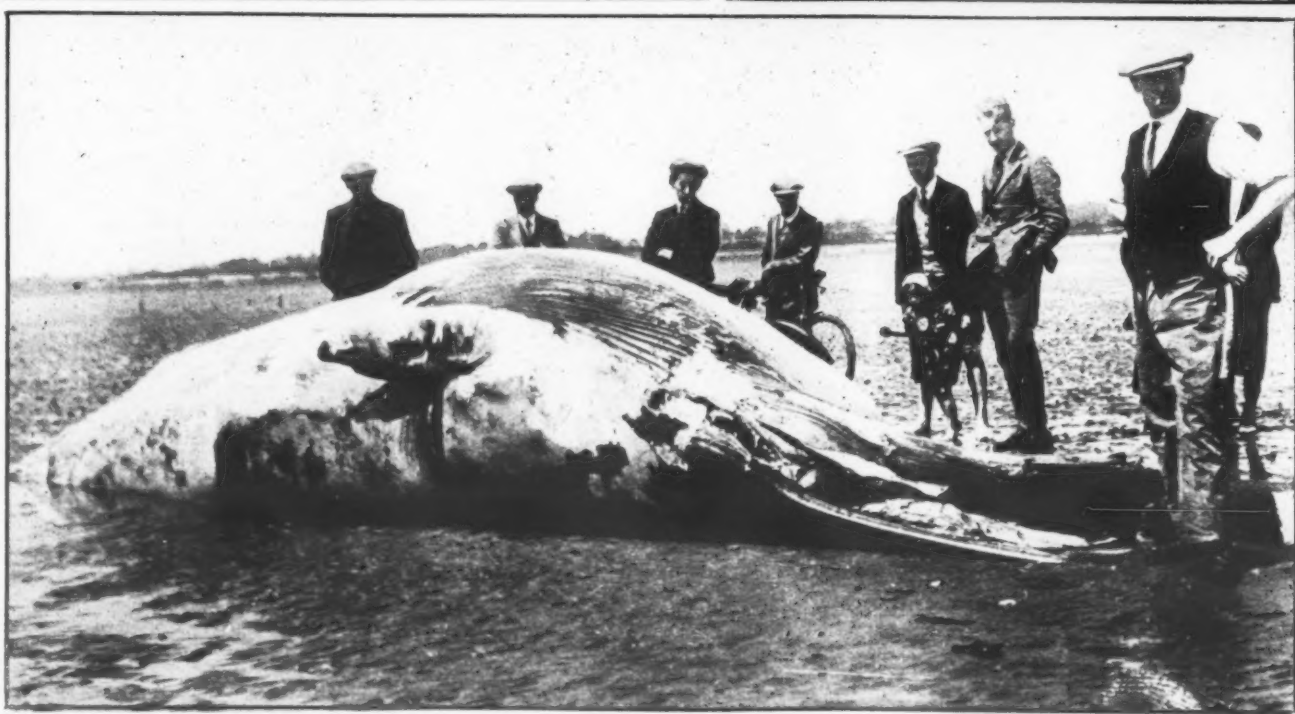

One of the incidents tending to restore the warm relations that existed between England and France before and during the World War was the conferring of the freedom of the City of Leeds upon Marshal Foch, the former Commander-in-Chief of the allied armies. The freedom of the city was conveyed to Paris in a silver cup and was presented to Marshal Foch at the Inter-Allied Club. The Lord Mayor of Leeds and Alderman Hodgson are seen making the presentation.

Funeral Services of Rathenau in the Reichstag

FUNERAL OF MURDERED GERMAN CABINET OFFICER

Dr. Walter Rathenau, prominent member of the German Cabinet, was killed recently by a band of assassins, thus adding one more to the many victims of similar crimes that have recently been perpetrated in that disturbed country. It is alleged that the murder was due to plotting on the part of the monarchist element. The funeral services of the assassinated Minister were held in the Reichstag with impressive ceremonies. The body is here seen lying in state with a profusion of floral tributes in front of it. President Ebert (marked by cross) with his Cabinet is seen attending the ceremonies. (International.)

Annam, or Indo-China as it is more commonly referred to, has been for many years a French protectorate. (Underwood & Underwood.)

THE smoldering disaffection of the extreme Republican element in Ireland, which had been accentuated by the result of the elections which had gone heavily in favor of the upholders of the treaty between England and Ireland, broke out into open revolt in Dublin during the last week in June. Rory O'Connor, Liam Mellows and other members of the radical element gathered about them a force of irregulars and took possession of the Four Courts, Dublin, one of the most notable structures of that city, and raised the banner of revolt. The place was at once besieged by the regular troops of the Provincial Government and artillery was brought to bear upon the stronghold. The rebel forces, less than 200 in number, held it tenaciously, but the remainder of 150 were finally forced to surrender and were conveyed to Mountjoy Prison.

Some of the damage done by the battering of the shells and the bullets of the regular forces is here shown. The photograph was taken immediately after the surrender of the irregular forces had ended the fighting. At right is seen one of the armored cars used by the regulars in their attack.

Louise Glaum The Famous Actress Says:

"Show Me A Homely Girl or Woman And I'll Show You A Neglected Complexion."

With a Soft, Peach-Like Velvety Skin Every Woman May Look Attractive. Nothing So
Good For the Skin as Ordinary Oatmeal

"The girl or woman who is passed by without a glance of admiration has only herself to blame," says Louise Glaum, the beautiful actress.

Through following a simple combination it is now possible for girls and women to have attractive, rosy-white, beautiful complexions. A few minutes night and morning is all the time required.

Here is the combination: Go to any grocery store and get 10 cents' worth of oatmeal and from any toilet counter a bottle of Derwillo. First cleanse your skin with a good cold cream (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best), then put a little of the oatmeal in a bag made of cheesecloth and with this wash your face, neck, hands and arms, using it the same as you would an ordinary wash-cloth. If it is not convenient to use the oatmeal, then use Derwillo-oatmeal soap, after which apply Derwillo. If your druggist cannot supply you with Derwillo-oatmeal soap, send 25 cents to Mae Edna Wilder, the beauty specialist, 77 South Ave., Rochester, N. Y., and she will be pleased to mail you a cake.

Over one million discriminating girls and women, including leading actresses now use Derwillo in preference to all other beautifiers. It contains no dangerous drugs, which dry out the skin and clog the pores, thus preventing them from doing the work nature intended them to do.

Derwillo and Liska cold cream has an astonishing effect on the skin. It softens, cleanses and helps make strong, healthy skin tissues. There is nothing like oatmeal and Derwillo for beautifying the hands and arms. A few days' use of this combination and your friends will comment favorably on your improved appearance.

This combination makes any one look younger. Miss Louise Glaum follows this method herself and recommends it to her most intimate friends, who are just as enthusiastic over it as she is.

You can well afford to devote a few minutes each day to the care of your skin, and if you do, you will soon notice an improvement in your appearance. Just try it once and note the difference. Derwillo comes in three shades, flesh, white and brunette.

Louise Glaum

Note:—When asked about Derwillo one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful beautifier, away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to anyone who is dissatisfied. This guarantee would not be possible unless the product possessed unusual merit." It is sold everywhere under a money-back guarantee by department stores and all druggists.

Youth is Flexible

Grace and Agility can be Yours

When you step into a boat, spring into a car or climb a rail fence on a cross-country tramp, you will quickly discover whether you possess the grace and agility that are natural to youth.

These vacation days bring opportunities to take part in joyous out-of-doors activities—to regain vitality and to recreate body and mind amid pleasant surroundings.

Your tirelessness and your zest for summer fun depend a great deal upon the condition of your feet. Feet that are restrained, weakened and held rigid in shoes having stiff arches, can hamper you, tire you and prevent you from gaining health and youthfulness.

Feet that enjoy the freedom and the flexibility of Cantilever Shoes will permit you to engage in sports that require lithe movements and add to the suppleness and grace of your figure. They will help you to keep youthful and to perform your duties with less fatigue and greater ease.

It is the flexible arch of the Cantilever Shoe that enables your own arch to flex as Nature intended. The muscles of the foot gain in strength thru this flexing exercise. It is the muscles and ligaments that hold the twenty-six bones of the foot in an arched position. A weak foot is strengthened by free circulation and constant exercise, which the Cantilever Shoe permits while supporting the arch flexibly.

The modish rounded toe and the medium heel of Cantilevers are sanctioned by Fashion for all daytime wear and semi-dress occasions. Many of the most smartly dressed women in America are wearing Cantilevers. They have found that they can have foot comfort and be trimly shod at the same time. YOU too will find in Cantilevers great comfort and relief from hot weather foot troubles.

All Cantilevers are trade-marked for your protection. They are made of fine materials by skilled workers who specialize in the flexible arch shoe.

Cantilever Shoes are sold all over the country by dealers who understand this shoe in its relation to your foot. Except in New York City there is only one dealer in each city. If no dealer in the panel at the left is near you write the manufacturers, Morse & Burt Co., 11 Carlton Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., for the name and address of a nearby dealer and a booklet that tells about shoes in a new way.
